

Casey's Last Ride

Shawn Mullins

Casey joins the hollow sounds of silent people walking down
The stairway to the subway, in the shadows down below
Following their footsteps through the neon-darkened corridors
Of silent desperation, never speakin' to a soul

The poison air he's breathin' has the dirty smell of dying
'Cause it's never seen the sunshine and never felt the rain
But Casey minds the arrows and ignores the fatal echoes
Twistin' on the turnstiles and the rattle of his chains

"Oh" she said, "Casey, it's been so long since I've seen you"
"Here" she said, "Just a kiss to make a body smile"
"See" she said, "I've put on new stockings just to please you"
And, "Lord" she said, "Casey, can you only stay a while?"

Casey leaves the underground and stops inside the Golden Crown
For something wet to wash away the chill that's in his bone
Seeing his reflection in the lives of all the lonely men
Who reach for any thing they can to keep from goin' home

Standin' in the corner Casey drinks his pint of bitter
Never glancing in the mirror at the people passing by
And he stumbles as he's leaving and he wonders if the reason
Is the beer that's in his belly or the tear that's in his eye

"Oh" she said, "I suppose you seldom think about me"
And, "Now" she said, "Now that you've a family of your own"
"Still" she said, "It's so blessed good to feel your body"
And, "Lord" she said, "Casey, it's a shame to be alone"

"Oh" she said, "Casey, it's been so long since I've seen you"
"Here" she said, "Just a kiss to make a body smile"
"See" she said, "I've put on new stockings just to please you"
And, "Lord" she said, "Casey, can you only stay a while?"
And, "Lord" she said, "Casey, it's a shame to be alone"
