

Someone Must Get Hurt

She Wants Revenge

Please don't touch me, I've come too far to let you bring me down

He thinks that I'm easy but try as you might you can't have me now

These tedious dances we run through but I've memorized them now
I quietly melt down and consent to you if only just to bawl

As I stare through you and I stand quite still

And an alarm sounds just up the road

I can tell you'd like some company but I can't fix you and you don't want me

I call for the witness, present the facts right down to the little things

They say the heart is resilient, in black and white you swore there'd be no strings

I sneak out the back door, but the gavel strikes

And I can hear you cry, under the sound of my footsteps

This time they will be no long goodbye

As I stare through you and I stand quite still

And an alarm sounds just up the road

I can tell you'd like some sympathy but I can't fix you and you
don't want me

How can I trust you? How could you need me now?

It's getting to be so cold, old

The decision is in that I won't break

You cut and you run with our lives at stake

Well, someone might get hurt and it won't be me

The decision is in there will be no fight

It might sound cold but I know it's right

'Cause someone must get hurt and it won't be me
