I Wish I Were The Rain

You said, I bled You meant, I went Overcomplicated, spent Love's a series of broken sentences Miscalculations, reconciliations Seductive highs, destructive lows Words that fly too fast Feet that move too slow Wish I could dance outside this windowpane Oh, I wish I were the rain

'Cause it can fall as hard as it wants to Gingerly drip down a lover's face Cry for hours and weeks on end And never feel a bit out of place And it can feed a field, put out a fire And never feel the pain I wish I were the rain (rain, I wish I were the) I wish I were the rain (rain, I wish I were the) I wish I were the rain (rain, I wish I were the) Oh yeah, I wish I were the rain

Don't speak, I'm weak You cry, I lie Overcompensation, why Our arsenal of hope has been bled dry Don't you wish that you could live outside the insane Don't you ever wish for a free reign

The blistering, twisted, hard-fisted blows Have drowned the once fervent glow

I wish I were the rain I can cry just like the rain, the rain Yeah, I wish I were I wish I were the rain I wish I were the rain Yeah
