

A Better World

Showbread

I've got great plans for a better place to live by taking twice as much as I could ever give we could make a better world by burning down the whole place but we're too stupid to see our hands in front of our face

To give up on your generation means a better world giving up on hope means a better world mastering disgust and apathy,
a better world
giving up on everything means a better world

Burn it down and build it up

I want to be someone to help enlighten the youth of today but we're all complacently brain dead, so what is there to say? the pleasures of my body are rotting with my faith in reconstruction for American, so burn it all today

Trample the weak, the patriotism and narcissism stop the blood short of my veins the temporal lobe is pale, and the circulation cut short fighting and igniting the red white and blue
