

Know That You Are Loved

Sidewalk Prophets

10:10 on a Sunday
She's hurries down the aisle
This week has left her tattered And single with her only child

In this crowd she feels so lonely
How did it turn out this way
So sweet when she was younger Now she lives her life in shame

And my heart breaks...

I don't know how you have been broken,
but I know that you are loved
There is no burden you could carry that would be too much for us
So when your world is torn and shattered
and all your dreams are left undone
No matter what may come... just know that you are loved

There's a war in the hallway
And ridicule rains down
He tries so hard to find some shelter
But it seems like there's no way out

And every insult fired Destroys a piece of him
They were friends when he was younger How did this all begin?

I don't know how you have been broken,
but I know that you are loved
There is no burden you could carry
that would be too much for us
So when your world is torn and shattered
and all your dreams are left undone
No matter what may come...

When fear's a storm and you get lost like tears in rain
Through all the doubt and pain
I'll still be hear to say That you are loved
You are loved

I don't know how you have been broken,
but I know that you are loved
that would be too much for us
So when your world is torn and shattered
and all your dreams are left undone
No matter what may come...
