

Memory

Signs of Betrayal

So much oppression that's built upon greed you fail to see
What is more important than power and fame and all you claim
What are you planning to take with you when you end this game
You might find the answers when you reach the grave
And realize possessions they don't mean a thing

No one gets out alive
Why can't you see
We're all destined to be A memory
That's all you're taking away From this place

Reach for the stars is what you have been told since infancy
You never bothered to question what for and why you dream
So you're living life in a fantasy world where you're the king
You'll never realize cause you're too blind to see

No one gets out alive
Why can't you see
We're all destined to be A memory
That's all you're taking away From this place

The end of your life is beginning to fray
With no fucking shame you still feed on the prey
The light at the end of your tunnel is fading away

No one gets out alive
Why can't you see
We're all destined to be A memory
That's all you're taking away From this place
