Repent

Silentium

"To Save One's Soul, We Need Nothing More Than Regret, And This Shall Become The Fall Of Man"

I have cursed thy grace in heavens
For such torments given to my heart
Such pain to pay for feelings
What throne of thorns inside I've felt

"O lo', as the morn breaks And you is the memory of thine warmth O lo', as the morn breaks Deluge of tears upon frozen soil"

...but this one last night Would I repent
Her thrashed innocence
For whence we fell

...but this one last night
Wish morn delays
Sole bitterness
For whence we fell

I have slept with fiends and serpents For such pleasures given to our flesh Such balefulness we all have felt What dreadful deeds the night conceals