

Lessons in Love, Hope and Faith: Part 2. Snow Globe World

Sister Hazel

She collects little worlds in the palm of her hand
What she sees on the outside she don't understand
All the pain and the anger are breaking her heart
The radiance and innocence always sets her apart

This is how we were made
We see things the same, but just a different shade
Don't you change a thing, little girl, in your snow globe world

Now it's snowing in summer with no end in sight
Mother Nature is trying, but she's losing her fight
Oceans rising around us and we're losing the trees
It's time for us to take account for every thin leaf

It's just how we are made
We see things the same, but just a different shade
Don't you change a thing, little girl, in your snow globe world
Your snow globe world, snow globe world

So shake it up, shake it around
Wake it up, make it go round and round
Round and round, it's your playground

We connect all the world with the palms of our hands
Looking in from the outside, I don't understand
If we all are the same, how we got to this place
Cause we are all just humans running in the human race

It's just how we are made
We see things the same, but just a different shade
Don't you change a thing, my little girl, in your snow globe world
Snow globe world, snow globe world
