

Any Other Love

Smalltown Poets

Any other love is imagined this is real
Infatuation fun fades and loses its appeal
It dims my eyes to the face that until now I could not see It's starting to sink in, the deeper I think in these terms of eternity

Turn from any other love
To the only face of your love

Any other love is misplaced identity
Pairing pride and shame, with the life it fakes of me
Faces of familiar loves, fall in shadows on the floor
Chased there by the light that pours, when you open every door

Turn from any other love
To the only face of your love

Turn from any other love
To the only face of your love

You're the only face of God's love for us
The one and only face of God's love for all of us

Any other love wants much more than I can give I'm telling everyone, this is the way I choose to live

Turn from any other love
To the only face of your love

Turn from any other love
To the only face of your love

Turn my eyes and my world
To the only face of your love

Turn my heart and my [Incomprehensible]
To the only face of your love

Turn away from the past
To the only face of your love

Turn my failure [Incomprehensible]
To the only face of your love
