

There's A Day

Smalltown Poets

the sun set down behind the trees how quickly did my skin sense the chill upon the breeze and i'm uneasy; the night surrounds me as dusk ushers out the light of day a symbol to be sure that my life can't forever stay there's a day when there will be no night
don't you know the Lamb will be our light vassal, star and noble moon your King comes riding soon and as i mourn this loss of mine i'll leave it up for you to shine daarkness makes the baby cry so the father sings a lullaby to drive the tears away
