I went down to the river To meet the widow She gave me an apple And it was red

I slept in her black arms
For a century
She wanted nothing in return
I gave her nothing in return

The ghost of her husband
Beautiful as a horse
Pulled up an apple cart
Full of millions of red apples for us
Full of millions of red apples for us

I went down to the river To meet the widow She gave me an apple And it was red

I slept in her black arms
For a century
She wanted nothing in return
I gave her nothing in return

I went down to the river To meet the widow
