

Melatonin

Smoke or Fire

Black or white it seems the answer is cut and clear to you
This misconception of what you want and what it takes to feel free

This kind of shit will steal your sleep and only lead you to a breakdown

No matter what I do I never seem to feel ok

I'm either trying to fall asleep or stay awake through the day
And for what in return?

It's getting harder than it's been in 27 years

It's killing me!

Close your eyes and hope for sleep to finally end the day

Open them and force yourself to sort through what's in your head

This kind of shit will steal your sleep and only lead you to a breakdown

It's the world that has to change not me

I'm fine with where I stand

These conversations all about nothing

Forget these opinions they put in your head

Burned and frayed and now the past is finally washed away

All we can do these days is medicate ourselves to feel sane

We're fed up with the scene, and sick and tired of the run-around, so run

We'd rather burn this to the ground than ever give it away to the world

You could give it away to the world, we could make them see

It's the world that has to change not me

I'm fine with where I stand

These conversations all about nothing

Fuck this he said, she said

It's the world that has to change not me

I'm fine with who I am

These conversations all about nothing

It's got to be easier than this

It's the world that has to change not me

I'm fine with where I stand

These conversations all about nothing

Forget these illusions they put in your head