

The Rain Came Down

Smokie

I called you on the phone tonight
Said you were doing fine
I held my breath, said I'm alright but we red between the lines I asked you are you all alone you paused before you answered
I swallowed hard, apologised You said it doesn't matter and then the rain came down
the rain came down
Like tears against my window pane
They cry instead of me My heart is numb and cries no more for fading memories but still the rain comes down
the rain comes down
Just like tears from up above Falling down upon my world well I just can't comprehend How it all went wrong back then should have held on, should have been strong should have never let it end your photograph's still standing here Feels like you're watching me
But photograph's can't fill this space Or give the love I need Still the rain comes down
The rain comes down
