I Don't Wear a Coat

Socratic

I don't wear a coat since I love the cold. It's not my fault I was never told to be polite when I speak. Bow to crowds' applause from empty seats. Hold out your hand: are you ready to eat? You look starved from up here.

They paved the streets we used to meet. How about another ride around to treat a sickness where I leak out my dreams, my dreams?

Fill in the dirt as I crawl out a hole. Everything I have I stole. It's just cheaper that way. What's the reason I don't wake up? Fuck this, fuck you. I am reason enough to daydream the day. Come on honey.

They paved the streets we used to meet. How about another ride around to treat a sickness where I leak out my dreams, my dreams? They paved the streets we used to meet. How about another ride around to treat a sickness where I leak out my dreams, my dreams?

I never needed anyone. I'd even give up my health for a pretty little name that's electric. It's electric. I never needed anyone. I'd even give up my health for a pretty little name that's electric. It's electric. Come on honey.

They paved the streets we used to meet. How about another ride around to treat a sickness where I leak out my dreams, my dreams? They paved the streets we used to meet. How about another ride around to treat a sickness where I leak out my dreams, I leak out my dreams?
