

The Concrete We're Trapped Within (It's Yours)

Sonic Boom Six

It's yours! And that's the only thing you gotta know.
We share the planet so it's up and out there for the taking.
We don't need the key we'll break in.
They paint it out like something new but this ain't no mystery,
it just had different names throughout the passage of history
when common people congregate to dance off their misery,
civil disobedience a part of democracy.

It doesn't matter what the headlines say,
we know the story at the end of the day
who are the men and women this country belong to anyway?
It's yours! And that's the only thing you gotta know,
we share the planet so it's up and out there for the taking.
We don't need the key we'll break in.

OK, let me explain the game they're playing, their aim;
keep us remaining on the same food chain,
inside their sinking economy
see they don't want to kids who show the signs of autonomy.
So don't believe the hype it's not the news of world it's in,
forget about the techno and the punx and the ketamine and think of how the freedom of the land the we're settled in is not without the reclaiming all the concrete we're trapped wi thin.

It doesn't matter what the headlines say,
we know the story at the end of the day
who are the men and women this country belong to anyway?
It's yours! And that's the only thing you gotta know,
we share the planet so it's up and out there for the taking.
We don't need the key we'll break in.
It's yours! As long as we're not harming anyone well then the p arty's on.
Break the locks, rig the box, rock the system.