Angels

Sophie Barker

She laughs when she wants to cry She smiles but she doesn't know Why the world takes it's toll on her

I try and talk some sense to you But only you can help yourself to Understand what's going on

Angels don't come here often Angels don't usually soften the fall

Do you think you can help me Do you think I'll find some freedom Do you think life's just one big struggle Or are there little angels looking after me

You fill your days with triviality hoping That it's just what you want to be But the truth keeps circling you

Just take a jump you maybe the fool But I guarantee the empress looks after you She'll never let you fall apart

Angels do come here often Angels do usually soften the fall

Yes I think I can help you Yes I know you'll find some freedom Yes I think life's just one big struggle But there are many angels looking after you

Yes I think I can help you Yes I know you'll find some freedom Yes I think life's just one big struggle But there are many angels looking after you Looking after you, looking after you Looking after you

Angels Angels Looking after Looking after you Angels
