

Here Comes the Rapture

Sophie Ellis-Bextor

Seeing you for the first time was like a parting of the clouds
Like a calling in the night
Like a sinner made devout
I was lost, I was lonely
But that's long forgotten now
Because you saw in me the light
And only you can bring it out

In the towers on the borders all the birds are singing out your name
Give ourselves up when they call us and I lose myself in you again

Ooh, here comes the rapture
Here comes the rhapsody to set me free
It's taken over me
Ooh, here comes the rapture
A feeling so divine to know you're mine
It's all that I believe

In the midst of renaissance you inspire me to live
Like a precious work of art that was only yours to give

In the mountains cross the borders all the bells are ringing out your name
Give ourselves up when they call us so I lose myself in you again

Ooh, here comes the rapture
Here comes the rhapsody to set me free
It's taken over me
Ooh, here comes the rapture
A feeling so divine to know you're mine
It's all that I believe

With every wave I'm drifting further and further from the shore
But it's ok I'm feeling certain now I'm part of something more

Ooh, here comes the rapture
Here comes the rhapsody to set me free
It's taken over me
Ooh, here comes the rapture
A feeling so divine to know you're mine
It's all that I believe
