

So Far Away

Soraya

Everywhere I go everything that I see every sound that fills my head brings it rushing back to me

You'd think by now I know You'd think by now I'd understand when this yearning shows its face I am nothing in its hand

It takes me so far away it hits me so close to home It brings me to that place that I covered long ago

When I see that child when I'm captured by her stare no matter where I may run I cannot hide anywhere

I'm challenged by her past I'm challenged by her memories I'm challenged by these feelings that have distanced her from me

It takes me so far away it hits me so close to home It brings me to that place that I covered long ago

And if I turn away soon it's at my side as if to say "your time is flying by" and I wonder if I'll ever fall back to my old ways I wonder if I'll ever find peace in my days

It takes me so far away it hits me so close to home It brings me to that place that I covered long ago

So far away ... So close to home To that place that I cover long ago
