Andromeda

You are the night And I am the day In the 17th hour we meet Whenever I descend in sunset

There you are following My night so sweet With the scent of life you fill me I want to return this love

For it's always spring when you're near Bringing the serenity of a pure white dove Yes you do with your love I am the moon

You are the sun When daylight breaks soon darkness will come It is in this cycle we become one I am you are me a reflection

When looking I see myself You are the night And I am the day Veil the sky you body

In a blanket of deep blue So I can uncover undress and complete you
