

Well, shit, yeah
All you've got to do is look in the sky and wish You might see his face in the clouds or relaxing in a spirit ditch
He's been known to sleep on piles of dry leaves Abandoned on October lawns
Well sometimes he awakens with spiders on his eyelids Rainmaker's coming, rainmaker's coming Rainmaker's coming to soak us with water Sometimes you feel just like a stone tossed into the deep
All you gotta do is touch a woman's face that's warm with sleep
And he can show up at your, your back door in the deep Trace him back before he was born Inquiring about an honest days work for a decent meal Rainmaker's coming, rainmaker's coming
Rainmaker's coming to soak us with water Well sometimes he's hitching a ride in a freezer or appears as a mist He's also been known to introduce himself as a scientist
He could be the retarded son of an old woman with Seven fingers on each hand
'Cos I know I reckon, he will come when he's beckoned for Rainmaker's coming, rainmaker's coming
Rainmaker's coming to soak us with water
To soak us with water
