

Vanities

Sparks The Rescue

She hates the way that state feels when the winter starts to roll in

We talk about all our vanities and how her friends seem to be vanishing

She carries on on like she don't have a heavy heart. Feels changed by the full moon

Parked her car outside of my house and starts crying in my room

"It's always raining," she said "inside my head"

Come and lift this curse so we can bury it

Deep where it won't hurt and spend our summer in a backyard romance

Caught in a first glance singing

Lay love down on me, lay love down on me

I got some wine and some cigarettes and we talked about the bad news

It's been on my mind for months and said oh, I still can't have you

You play your heart like you're going all in but we know that it ain't true

So I blew out the candles and finished my glass to lie down beside you

"It's always raining," I said "over my bed"

Come and lift this curse so we can bury it

Deep where it won't hurt and spend our summer in a backyard romance

Caught in a first glance singing

Lay love down on me, lay love down on me

There's a big bad storm, yeah, in this small town

It's gonna be the end of us some way, somehow

This is where I was born, in this small town

It's gonna be the end of us some way, somehow

Come and lift this curse so we can bury it

Deep where it won't hurt and spend our summer in a backyard romance

Caught in a first glance singing

Lay love down on me, lay love down on me

Come and lift this curse so we can bury it

Deep where it won't hurt and spend our summer in a backyard romance

Caught in a first glance singing

Lay love down on me, lay love down on me
