Hey you!

You never should've ran.
You want to make something that you can take you down again.
This time you say your just fine.
You need a little something
that can make you smile again.
Come on. It won't take long.
You're never going to need
it when you hear that sound again.
It's a sin. You're looking kind of thin.
You need a little bit so you can impress everybody.
You're still in a daze.

Hey you!

I know you like to prance so get up and dance so i can spin you round again.

Take your time you're looking just fine.

Let's do a little shuffle and that can make you smile again.

Come on. It won't take long.

Let's sing a little song

until the sun don't shine again.

But every time you say your just fine you need a little bit so you can impress everybody.

You're still in a daze.

You can try hard but you never really had the time so take a look around see just what you're going to get inside. You never should've ran
