

The One Who Broke Your Heart

St. Vincent

All the beautiful people
They did some work on your face
And in that struggle for freedom
Everyone looks the same (That's right)

And everybody is pregnant
And everybody's in pain
We're all pushing and shoving
To make those human beings

Although they say you're aristocracy (That's what they say)
We all deserve to wear that crown

Sing along
With the one who broke your heart
Sing it loud
It'll keep you safe and warm (That's right)

In the garden of Eden
On a hot summer day
We were totally naked
Outside that small cafe

Am I the one you imagined
Am I heaven or hell
But no one else can compare to
The way you love yourself (You know you do)

I came to tell you on this bicycle
The trees and houses say hello

Sing along
With the one who broke your heart
Sing it loud
It will keep you safe and warm (That's right)
After you dream
In the middle of the night (I guess I did)
I sing along
To open up those spirit eyes

Faster and faster
No one's holding the wheel
Interstate highway
Through those city and fields
Your friends and family
They tell your secrets to me
It's not so impressive
Until they all disappear

Sing along
With the one who broke your heart (You know you'll do it)
After that dream
Where you got that man you love
