

Well I want you to notice,
To notice when I'm not around.
To know that your eyes see straight through me;
They speak to me without a sound.

I want to hold you,
Protect you from all of the things I've already endured.
I want to show you,
Show you all the things that this life has in store for you
I'll always love you,
The way that a father
Should love his daughter.

When I walked out this morning
I cried as I walked to the door
I cried about how long I'd be away for
Cried about leaving you all alone.

I want to hold you,
Protect you from all of the things I've already endured.
I want to show you,
Show you all the things that this life has in store for you
I'll always love you,
The way that a father
Should love his daughter.
