

Learning To Breathe

Stanfour

Just right before the end of time,
We stood together, you and I.
There was no place to go, no time to act.
So we brace ourselves for the impact.

Oh, when the waves crush in,
Soak you to your skin
And you're lost,
Shaking off the weight.
When the sea breaks through,
Tryin' to swallow you.
You wake up, learn to breathe again.

We cried for every fading light (woah, woah)
All the good days flashed before our eyes (woah, woah)
It's so hard to leave something behind (woah, woah)
When your heart still wants to hold so tight.

Oh, when the waves crush in,
Soak you to your skin
And you're lost,
Shaking off the weight.
When it all breaks you,
And you're hollow through.
You wake up, learn to breathe again.

When the waves crush in,
Soak you to your skin
And you're lost,
Shaking off the weight.
When it all breaks you,
And you're hollow through.
You wake up, learn to breathe again.

Oh when it all breaks you,
Oh when it all breaks you.
And you're lost, shaking off the weight.
When it all breaks you,
And you're hollow through.
You wake up, learn to breathe again.