Today Will Be Better, I Swear!

When you can't get up to the cold morning light But you don't get to sleep in

And everybody only wants to fight You're up against never being right

When the worries of the world hold your feet And there's little left to believe in

Today is going to be a better one There's nothing more to take in That's going wrong

Old pale memories of someone you knew Keep crawling through the back of your mind

In the daylight you're crossing all your wires You never knew just how to put out a fire

The closet's been shaking with bones Little reminders that you're out on your own

Today is going to be a better one There's nothing more to take in That's going wrong

Today keep your head and drop the gun There's nothing more to battle when you're gone

Walk on

Stars