I still feel the cold of long past days I knew my worth put in my place it's no surprise I realized some time before december sun shines through haze I put my thoughts toward future days it's no surprise I close my eyes and close the door feeling so old years pass like days fastly changing so many ways my eyes perceive yes I believe in nothing more