Natalie

Stephen Duffy

And so we're chastened We feel so insecure We're frightened Now not sleeping around's

Enlightened What did we do wrong? While love bereaves me I can't believe in me

Natalie it started Only an hour ago Lying on your carpet I knew what I didn't know

I felt myself let go. You know I see you Blushing in the dark Recalling all those requited moments

Of longing Can I accept each love You've taken The case continues

Down bourgeois avenues. And you like a teenage Isabelle Huppert Swapping foot noted thoughts On what we share

On lying there Last night the stardust Settled in the cradled apartments Across the evenings sweet indulgence

We satisfied ourselves. The gears are changing But we're going nowhere. Natalie it started

Only an hour ago Lying on your carpet I knew what I didn't know. Natalie it started

Only an hour ago Lying on your carpet I knew what I didn't know I felt myself let go.
