

Selfless Love

Steve Vai

Before I was even born
I was already in your life
You carried me in your heart
You carried me in your eyes

An infant so very small
Could lie in your lovely hand
Not knowing how big the world
Not knowing yet who I am

And I felt warm again
Lullabies and whisperings
So soft in my ear
So sweet was that sound
That reached to my soul
And left me floating in an ocean
Of your selfless love
Of your selfless love
Through all of the trials in my life
You were always within my reach
Amazing the sacrifice in
In every breath you'd breathe

Whenever that child go lost
Or bled through those growing pains
I know it broke your heart
But the feather was in the wind

And I'll always treasure those Glorious memories of
Sweet summers of freedom
And home for the holidays
And autumn in the air
And the wondrous seasons of
Your selfless love
Your selfless love....

Sometimes we never know
Just what we have at hand
Only time can show
What we could never understand
