

I Should Be With You Right Now

Steve Wariner

I met a lady on the plane to California
She reminded me so much of you
When she asked what I was doing here
Well then it hit me
The crazy things a dollar makes us do

I should be with you there right now
The state that you're in
I should holding you instead of losing my mind
Just when you need me the most so does the coast
But I swear I'll make it up to you this time

I pass a family as they hug before departure
It just reminds me you're alone
I hold the quarter that will take my voice back to you
To hear you say I need you here at home.
