

True Confession

Sue Thompson

Last week over at the drugstore a magazine caught my eye
I read a little story standing there and I had to break down and cry

Cause that true confession written by I don't know who
Was the story of my love affair with you

She was a one man woman he was the prince of heels
He made a shambles out of her heart and I know how she feels Cause that true confession pitiful sad and blue
Was the story of my love affair with you

He promised her love as sweet as wine
But he forgot to say she had to stand in line
Cause he was fickle and folly too
A quick embracin' girl chasin' heart breaker just like you

I walked outta that drugstore ears rollin' down my cheeks
I know that story will stick with me for weeks and weeks and weeks
Cause that true confession a written by I don't know how

Was the story of my love affair with you
Yes that true confession pitiful sand and blue
Was the story of my love affair with you