

Something Invisible

Suicide Silence

I can't hide this anymore,
I've got to speak up.
It's time to say what the fuck's on my mind,
It's your smile that I miss and your pretty eyes
A fake smile behind a wounded face.
With hands to hide the doubt you have in faith.

So deep inside of you.

You're the saddest life my eyes have seen.
Suffocating in your own fucking doubt,
Your own doubt in faith.

And I know exactly how this has come about.
And I know exactly how this has come about.

As long as I can remember you've always been this miserable,
And it's all because you're still believing in something fuckin
g invisible.

Making time to think has made you weak in your own convictions.
Making time to think has made you weak in your own convictions.

As long as I can remember you've always been this miserable,
And it's all because you're still believing in something fuckin
g invisible.
As long as I can remember you've always been this miserable,
And it's all because you're still believing in something fuckin
g invisible.