

Whales And Sharks

Sundowner

I belong to the sea
To the algae far beneath Swimming with the whales and the sharks in the never-ending breeze Under a map of unknown stars are the deepest, darkest hearts
Like the wreckage far off shore
I'm dead asleep on the ocean floor

My time will come
The waves will crash
The mast will fall
The sea will rise
The storms will pass
The sharks will sail on

I belong to the sea
To the valleys in the deep
To the plant-life and the fish and the shining coral reef
To the last and shipwrecked souls telling legends of treasure and gold To a mutiny that begins in the darkest hearts of men
