

Raining

Susanna Hoffs

Seems like yesterday
I was listening to the rhythm of your heart
We started off so great
We laid in bliss for weeks and days
But we were marked

Were you a vision or a waking dream?
I close my eyes again but I can see

It's raining on the road ahead
It's raining ever since you said goodbye

At first I stayed at arms length
When you were begging me for more
Suddenly it flipped
And I became the stray cat
Purring at your door

You might feel otherwise but I'm sincere
I faded in your eyes but I'm still here

And it's raining on the road ahead
It's raining ever since you said
That it's too late

As sure as winter finally turns to spring
All of your sweetness lingers here with me

It's raining though the skies are blue
Yes it's raining and I'm missing you