

One Foot In Front Of The Other

Suzie McNeil

Echoes from an empty house
The ringing in my ears get aloud
A faint sent still lingers in the air
I have a few of your cool things you left
Your figurines, the box of cassettes
And I'm still feelin' your spirit everywhere

But the memories will fade with each new day
And the pain in my heart is here then okay
And I can see another side of me on the road ahead

From a small cry
To standing up tall
Barely able to walk
To risin' from the dark
In a full strike now
Don't want to slow me down
Far from where I begin
I found my feet again

I'm no longer gasping for air
I've finally trapped that heavy despair
I feel the sun peepin' through the clouds we haze
My thoughts drift to you late at night
I really hope you do me right
A part of you will be with me always

But the memories will fade with each new day
And the pain in my heart is here then okay
And I can see another side of me on the road ahead

From a small cry
To standing up tall
Barely able to walk
To risin' from the dark
In a full strike now
Don't want to slow me down
Far from where I begin
I found my feet again

One foot in front of the other
One foot in front of the other
One foot in front of the other
One foot in front of the other

A small cry
To standing up tall
Barely able to walk
To risin' from the dark
In a full strike now
Don't want to slow me down
Far from where I begin
I found my feet again

One foot in front of the other (I found my feet again)
One foot in front of the other
One foot in front of the other (I found my feet again)

One foot in front of the other
