

Opportunist

Sworn In

You can't always change the world around you to fit your selfish needs.

I won't try to reach out to your gluttony and endless greed

I don't need to change the fucking world

To change you I don't need to change the fucking world

To remain true

I can say that I heard you loud and clear

Every single fucking lie that you screamed in my ears

Were you telling the truth, while you were living a lie?

Were you even aware, that I was wasting my time?

I can say I heard you loud and clear

I hear you loud and clear

I hate the way you cling to ignorance

And pass it off as innocence

You're just a worthless opportunist

I hate the way you cling to ignorance

And pass it off as innocence

You're just scum like all the rest

I'll take this opportunity to be the person I should be

And I hope that one day you'll grow up and see

The cold hearted truth that

We are all alone at heart

Just trying to find our way out of the dark

Maybe were meant to be this way from the start

But I know one thing and it's that I don't have to be an opportunist like you

To climb to the top of this worthless earth

I will never be an opportunist like you