Bequest Of Tears

Sylvan

In the quietness of my silent walls Where the shadows play the dance of you All around me \square where each part once told your life Where the window still reflects your smile

Still I feel you, still IDm trapped within our time Wondering vainly D why you left, my child When my fingers start to open your bequest Clutching tightly the lifeless book you left & for me