In Your Eyes

I can still remember, long ago Living in the fast lane, never slow And nothing that could come between me and you

I still hear the words I thought were cheap You should always look before you leap And I never realised those words were oh so true

I hope that you can hear me Though you're living in another world Throwing shadows upon earth

In your eyes, I could drown and still survive In your eyes, I could see how to live my life But if only I knew That chances were few Maybe I would still be with you

Several thoughts I can't define Living on a dream, seems like a crime But every now and then it's hard to ignore

'Cause only in my dreams I find a clue when I try to build a memory of you I know our love will be much stronger than before

Sylver