

Resolution

Take Cover

And when the clock strikes twelve and your lips hit his,
I hope you both drop dead from your new years kiss,
I'll make a resolution remind me to forget you.

So on this late December evening,
make a toast and take it down.
As your vision blurs and you're slurring your words,
I'll just smile while you fall to the ground.

Let it be known that from this moment,
you've been banished from my head.
So stay out of my way, I'll do the same,
don't want to see your face or hear your name.

And when the clock strikes twelve and your lips hit his,
I hope you both drop dead from your new years kiss,
I'll make a resolution remind me to forget you.

I'd rather spend my days and sleep my nights,
without the should been done and the should have done right.
I'll make a resolution remind me to forget you.
Its time to start moving on.

When you get lonely just keep looking,
there's no love left for you here.
Keep running it out,
keep bringing me down,
only I know what you're really about.

So stay out of my way,
I'll do the same,
don't want to see your face or hear your name.
Stay out of my way,
and I'll do the same,
don't want to see your face or hear your name.

And when the clock strikes twelve and your lips hit his,
I hope you both drop dead from your new years kiss,
I'll make a resolution remind me to forget you.

I'd rather spend my days and sleep my nights,
without the should been done and the should have done right.
I'll make a resolution remind me to forget you.

Now the ball drops down my heart drops through the floor.
I don't want to taste your lies anymore.
Can't move on, can't get over it.
It's a new year all alone.
