

Death Wolf

Taking Back Sunday

Nobody, nobody will know
Nobody, nobody will know

I felt like a giant when I sat beside you
You're little but you ain't small
And from the comfort of that couch in the sad part of Brooklyn
The train took forever so most nights we'd just stay in
With our head in the clouds and our feet on the floor
Had a little bit and now we want some more
With our hands to ourselves triple locking the door
Nobody will know, nobody will know

Thought I had enough but now I'm not sure
I had a little bit and now I want some more
(Had a little bit and now I want some more)

Then at four in the morning you'd ask how I was doing
Like I didn't know where I was
The good times were met with such reckless abandon It's always better to have had, always better to have had
With our head in the clouds and our feet on the floor
Had a little bit and now we want some more

Lost all that blood now we're locking the door
Nobody will know

Thought I had enough but now I'm not sure
Had a little bit and now I want some more
(Had a little bit and now we want some more)
(Had a little bit and now we want some more)
(Had a little bit and now we want some more)
(Had a little bit and now we want some more)

One times two times three times four
Head in the clouds waking up on the floor
One times two times three times four
Head in the clouds waking up on the floor
Had a little something that we couldn't ignore
Lost all that blood now we're locking the door
One times two times three times four
Head in the clouds waking up on the floor
Had a little something that we couldn't ignore
Lost all that blood now we're locking the door
Nobody, nobody will know

Thought I had enough but now I'm not sure
Had a little bit and now I want some more
(Had a little bit and now I want some more)
(Had a little bit and now I want some more)
(Had a little bit and now I want some more)
(Had a little bit and now I want some more)
Lost all that blood now we're locking the door
Nobody, nobody will know
