The Everlasting

It's 8am and her blood's still warm The radio choke's out my favorite song I hear sirens, they sing along, through the walls My pulse is pumping to the beat outside A violent screaming rise and shine Waves of helplessness reach to the sky, with heartbreak eyes And as the walls around come crashing down I ask myself how am I still around It's easy It's beautiful It's simple The everlasting Sunday glow I won't let you in Don't push me away I turn the music up a little more Trying to drown out what's in store There's a battle raging right outside my door, it's all over Head downstairs Empty table The TV glares A criminal has been declared, beware And as the walls around come crashing down I ask myself how am I still around It's easy It's beautiful It's simple The everlasting Sunday glow I won't let you in Time and time and time again We seem to break before we bend It's easy It's beautiful It's simple The everlasting Sunday glow I won't let you in So don't push me away