

The earth shook and the mighty angels wept
the brooms of fire sadly swept In a flash of light all we knew was lost no one was left to bear the cost

Parasites were fed, weak hearts had bled, mediocres were lost between In the end they all screamed and burned the faulty ones laughed and died unseen

The darkness rules the molten graves alone, where millions of fools lived in sin All those who bowed to the unholy throne, were to see the skull beneath the grin

Torches from hell let out their deadly scream
The demons cracked the blue sky with flames Riding through flesh and steel on a laser beam ridding the unborn of their names

Iron stars in their mindless courses corpses blown by the void Thunder rolled with heavenly horses as they crashed and were destroyed

The earth shook and the mighty angels wept
the brooms of fire sadly swept

Iron stars...

Voices of those who had to die in vain can be heard echoing through the night A useless replay of their endless pain never finding their way to the light

Iron stars...