

Excuses

Ten Foot Pole

It was the alcohol you said
Took away your common sense
You don't remember a thing
Unconsciousness is your defense

It's everybody's fault but yours
And now we must forgive
How can we hold a grudge?
When you can't remember what you did but

It's not so easy to forgive
No matter what you say
It's not so easy to forget
It won't just go away
It will never be the same

You'll never drink that much again
Those intentions sound just great
And while I'm glad to see you've learned
I think it's just a little too late
It's everybody's fault but yours
And now we must forgive
How can we hold a grudge?
When you can't remember what you did