

Dangers of the Faithless

Testament

Predicting war, predicting life, predicting when disaster strikes

Living life, living death, living on borrowed time

End of time, end of days, end of all the things you save

See the future, see the past, what does he have in store...

Through the years, through the eyes and the lies

What he sees has become no surprise

Through the years and the tears and the lies

Condemned to hell, condemned to fate, condemned to time

Sacrament, sacrilege, altar to a sacrifice

Smell the blood, smell the death, smell the stench of demons' breath

Filled with love, filled with hate, filled with hope that dissipates

Fallen hero, fallen god, fallen victims that we've become

Through the years, through the eyes and the lies

What he sees has become no surprise

Through the years and the tears and the lies

Condemned to hell, condemned to fate, condemned to time

When you step into the circle

Prepare yourself as we choose your fate, your fate

As you're bleeding at the altar for your sins with blood you'll pay

You'll pay

Through the years, and the tears through the lies of the pain

End of time, end of days, end of life, end of pain

Predicting war, predicting life,

Predicting winds just as it strikes

Living life, living death

Living on, upon our time

End of time, end of days

End of hours, things you save

See the future, see the past

What does he have in store

Through the years, through the eyes and the lies

What he sees has become no surprise

Through the years and the tears and the lies

Condemned to hell, condemned to fate, condemned to time
