

Half the World Away

The Anix

Half the world away I can see your face roads are winding lights are blinding and this bottle of bourbon will take me home though I cannot hear a whisper your voice shatters all the memories that I can't forget paralyzed and burnt out just like ashes from the drag of my last cigarette time seems to stand in place I swear I heard your name desperation in slow motion as we walk in the same place down different roads

though I cannot hear a whisper your voice shatters all the memories that I can't forget paralyzed and burnt out just like ashes from the drag of my last cigarette

I'm not giving up I just gave you away saving all I had hoping that things will change some days it can rain through the darkest nights clouds can't cover up what is shining so bright though I cannot hear a whisper your voice shatters all the memories that I can't forget paralyzed and burnt out just like ashes from the drag of my last cigarette

ooooh (5x)
