

Sleepwalking

The Automatic

Nineteen years gone away
The kids have grown up
These trains don't run anymore
How the view from the window's changed
Over my bones, people talk and talk
Do we all commit to
You'd see so much more of the world today
If you take into sleepwalking
The last thing that you heard must have been
I'll change, I'll change
I'll change
Time travelling makes an antique of yourself
The curtains pulled wide
The unveiling of a museum piece
Small price to pay, small price to pay
For this freedom of choice
You'd see so much more of the world today
If you take into sleepwalking
The last thing that you heard must have been
I'll change, I'll change
I'll change
Out of date, at the right place at the wrong time
Don't let them take it away
Out of place but a lucky escape
Rescued at last
You'd see so much more of the world today
If you take into sleepwalking
The last thing that you heard must have been
I'll change, I'll change
I'll change
