

The Other Garden

The Awakening

I stepped away from the garden
So intent on covering my shame
The thoughts of all I had broken
Building on the dirt of the day

Inside the tomb of confusion
I have spent a lifetime away
From even dreams or allusions
By candle light I've witnessed decay

Of all the men who'd chosen their wars
And all the men that had given up on fighting for the cause
To re-instate the the harmony that was given to us

When water was yet land and the sun bled with the stars

I'm leading for New Beginning
A path to walk free from disease
Begging for a New Beginning
To put the earth right back on it's knees

I'm waiting for the second coming
Screaming out at the heaven above need the power of that love
Praying for a New Beginning
It's colder here without the touch
Impatience went from us
To shoveled...