

Away from you
The light moves out of view
I'll wait for you
We'll drive where we always do

Over the roads like the blood in our veins
Lines that were broken are now the same
It feels so familiar like nothing has changed
I still remember

When we were strangers
I would believe I was walking in my sleep
We were strangers
When I believed I could wake up from this dream

Nights go by
Hours pass and moonlight dies
Close your eyes
You're dreaming and so am I

You know I can't stay here and I won't pretend
All that begins never comes to an end
It felt so familiar, it's all that remains
I still remember

When we were strangers
I would believe I was walking in my sleep
We were strangers
When I believed I could wake up from this dream

As life goes on
I know that time will tear us apart
And take you away
And when you're gone
I'll wake up with a hand on my heart
And a foot in my grave

When we were strangers
I would believe I was walking in my sleep
We were strangers
When I believed I could wake up from this dream
