

High Tides And Swimming Conditions

The Bunny the Bear

You made it seem like everything had been forgotten.
Like everything that I've forgotten gave hope to me.
You made it through, without all the stains or the fire.
A burden to carry us higher, and I gave it to you

I've brought an end
Gave up all the flings and desires.
A burden that made me feel higher.
Because you made it seem you always knew
The truth in my eyes unexpected
The lies that I thought I'd protected,
But you seemed to

I never thought I'd see
The day someone breathed for me
The day it'd grow old just to burden myself
And to bandage the holes

I never thought I'd see
The day someone breathed just like me
The day in my heart where the truth would unfold
And it'd tear me apart

The ship hit the seas
With hopes of new land and desire
A vision to carry her higher
Well you made it seem

And the sirens lead us to the wreck
And the anchor will pull in the deck water sweeps so smooth
When every last scream it reflects back on you

Well I give it to you
Carry me through
Bury me caught up in the wreckage baby
Well I give it to you
Carry me through
Bury me caught up in the wreckage baby
Well I give it to you
Carry me through
Bury me caught up in the wreckage baby
