

Everything & Nothing

The Classic Crime

I've tasted fame but never fortune
And still I couldn't care less for both
I hope you're done saying "I told you so"
Cause I think I'm done telling the world what I know
Everything is dark inside the whitest lie
When you take the truth in every half truth
You take the grey over the black and white
I am everything and nothing
Give me one good reason to believe I'm not alone
I will wait for You to answer me
I've never been much for smoke and mirrors so I need a hand to hold
I will wait for You to answer me
I've tasted blame poured out by brothers
And I much prefer a woman's scorn
They chastise me for being honest
When they hide behind their pride and their porn
Everything is white inside the blackest truth
I know you hate to hear it but it's all that I can do
I am everything and nothing
I am black and white, I am wrong and right
